PERSONALITIES

BY JOSEPH KAYE

(New York Special to The Canadian Jewish Review)

There is now running at the Yiddish Art Theatre, which is the principal Jewish theatre in New York and the spokesman, so to speak, of the Jewish theatrical art in America, a highly successful comedy, Gogol's "Revizor" (The Inspector General). This production is most remarkable in that it is one of the very, very few comedies that bring a ray of cheer to the tragedy-soaked Yiddish stage. True, the comedy is Russian, but it is played in Yiddish, so let us ask no questions.

Of all the productions that Maurice Schwartz has made in the later phase of his career none has been as perfectly cast, nor as well played as "The Inspector General." Two actresses from the Broadway stages were seated next to us; they could not understand a word that was spoken on the stage, but their admiration for the stagecraft exhibited could not be bounded by such a handicap. Their enthusiasm bubbled audibly and the substance of it was: "This is a lesson in acting!"

Oddly enough, perhaps the one performer that did not come up to the standard set was Bertha Gerstin. Miss Gerstin is a very pretty woman and a very good actress, but, alas, she is emphatically conscious of both virtues. She made quite a ravishing picture as she appeared in pantalettes and low corset-cover, with white and well formed shoulders and graceful, rounded arms, dazzling the eyes of the audience; but when she gave to the play a step-mother interest and moved about languidly and spoke her lines in an over-satisfied manner we would have liked to say to her: "My dear Miss Gerstin, your beauty certainly fills us with delight; but there is more beauty on the stage than it knows what to do with; some of it overflows into shops and restaurants, but talent is scarce and priceless. Won't you give us a little more of that?"

"The Inspector General," if you have never read or seen it performed by amateur groups, concerns—but let us append one of Mr. Samuel Grossman's ever excellent synopses:

"The scene is a provincial Russian town. A group of corrupt public officials, from the governor down to the drunken sergeant, are thrown into panic by the arrival of a strange functionary. They believe him to be an inspector general traveling incognito, who has come to seek them out in their sins of municipal jobbery and plunder. As a matter of fact, Khlestakov, the new arrival, is an ingenuous, light-headed young government clerk from St. Petersburg, ambling through the countryside. He has wasted his funds en route, and the unexpected bribes of all sorts with which he is now loaded by everybody, from the governor down, come most opportunely. After riding on the hightide of this tragi-comic situation, and involuntarily acquiring money, the worship of the officials and the hand of the governor's daughter, he makes himself scarce in the nick of time. Only a few minutes after he has left the bonzed officials, the real inspector general comes to punish the local bureaucrats."

In the role of the elegant young imposter, Maurice Schwartz was handsome and effective, but in the more characteristic parts of the imposter's old peasant servant and the town governor Muni Weisenfreund and Leonid Snegoff were supreme. This young man Weisenfreund is one of the best artists the Jewish stage has. He combines some of the marvelous powers of characterization possessed by Ludwig Satz and a thoughtful, studious intent, which make for a unique artist. As the grimy, shrewd, lumbering man-servant he was a whole-hearted satisfaction every minute he was on the stage. Snegoff brought a distinctive note to the Yiddish stage in this play. We have never seen so stalwart a figure, an artist so thoroughly in sympathy with the work in hand and so detached from Yiddish stage conventionalities. He was what he wanted to be in the play and gave no indication that he could also play, let us say "The Sorrows of Israel," if called upon.

As we have observed before with the reservation all the others in the long cast were good, and that is an achievement.

For one who shook off the dust of Russia at the age of seven it may appear presumptuous to criticize the direction of "The Inspector" by Vladimir Viskovsky, the former regisseur of the Theatre Korsch in Moscow. To us it seemed that this direction made the last two acts naive comic operas. As a matter of fact the situation almost coincided with some of those in "The Chocolate Soldier," redeemed only by the magnificent philosophic outburst of the governor when he finds how neatly he has been fooled; and that is magnificent only when declaimed by a Snegoff.

For this reason it seems to us that "The Inspector General" is not due for success when it is produced on Broadway in English, as Mr. Schwartz plans to do. The English production is directed also by Viskovsky and the American theatre-goer, fed on a diet of the intricate plots of modern American comedy, will hardly accept such simplicity, except in musical comedy. Played in a slower tempo and with somewhat less levity it would be more agreeable.

An interesting letter was received recently by the Yiddish Art Theatre. It was from the director of the Drama Society of the Imperial Academy of Tokio. The letter asked for information concerning the plays of Sholom Asch, David Pinski, Leon Kobrin and Peretz Hirshbein. That the Japanese should wish to produce the plays of these dramatists is certainly gratifying to our national vanity.

There has been keen agitation among us since Paderewski announced his concert tour. Our Toronto brethren made the start when they decided to boycott the pianist when he visited their town. As one rabbi aptly said, "We will strike him where it will hurt him most—in the box office."

This agitation is a repetition of the animosity displayed toward Paderewski about ten years ago when he was accused of subsidizing the Polish anti-Semitic newspaper, "Dwa Grosha." The result of that boycott, although Paderewski strenuously denied the charges, was that Paderewski's tour was a flivver, and America came to know how many music-lovers we numbered in our midst.

If the present agitation against Paderewski is carried out with the same thoroughness as before, the likelihood is that Paderewski will feel extremely hurt in the region where it hurts most. But there is a question whether such a course is fitting. After all, we came to hear an artist for the pleasure and inspiration his art affords us. As an artist Paderewski is one of the greatest—as a man he may be below decent levels, as far as we are concerned. But we think we have no more cause to boycott Paderewski as an artist than America had reason to boycott German and Austrian artists during the war. It is more reasonable than we would have in boycotting Wagner's operas

Mr. Ford Does Not Square His Actions With His Words

Last Saturday, the "New York Times" published a special interview with Henry Ford, from Boston. Mr. Ford informed the "Times" correspondent that he has no hatred in his heart for the Jews. "As a matter of fact," he continues, "I admire the Jew because, when things get stuck he is the only one who seems to have the power to start it up again and pull it over. However," he added, "that does not wipe out the fact that the Jew, who is a victim of a false money system, is the very foundation of the world's greatest curse to-day — war.

"Our money system is all wrong," continues Mr. Ford, "and the Jew, who is the money specialist, is its greatest victim." And he concluded, "No, I have no hatred for the Jew, and those Jews who play hardest at the money game are very much in the minority."

It would be folly again to discuss the historic acumen which judges that wars can be made and unmade by a group of individuals for the sake of the money it might yield those interested. It is perfectly patent, no doubt, to humanitarians like Mr. Ford, that the Jews caused the Great War so that their sons, who were German and Austrian, should have the opportunity to kill their sons who were Belgian, French, English and American.

It would likewise be folly here to discuss our money system which is all wrong, and of which the Jew is the greatest victim, says the "American Hebrew." Victims, according to humanitarian ideals, are to be pitied and commiserated with, not condemned and bludgeoned. As to whether fiat money will cure the ills of the world and, according to Mr. Ford, the ills of the Jews particularly, is a question for economists and historians to debate.

An Irrational Critic

Here we are interested in Mr. Ford's repeated statement that he does not hate the Jew in his heart. That is a good Old Testament injunction, and Mr. Ford evidently believes that he is following this ancient Jewish commandment.

His acts, however, do not square with his words.

1. In January of this year, Mr. Ford announced that he would cease attacking the Jews. Most Jews throughout the country concluded that the Ford campaign against them had ended. Two months later, however, he published an additional volume of his despicable screeds against the Jews. Since then these books have been on sale wherever it was possible for the Ford Organization to place them, and they have been sent out unceasingly from that day to this, by the ton, via the U. S. mails, throughout the country.

2. At the Michigan State Fair last September, Ford had an exhibition. He displayed all his types of automobiles and tractors and was present personally a considerable part of the time. Among the products of his various plants that he was exhibiting were the four anti-Semitic books. These were the only books of the Ford output which he was proud enough to exhibit, and their sale was pushed energetically.

These books give the Henry Ford interpretation of the Jews, their religion, their character, their business methods, their family life and their attitude—

Jews as Patients

BY A DOCTOR

If asked to name the chief characteristic distinguishing Jewish from other patients, I should point without hesitation to the much greater devotion of Jewish people to their children. That Jewish children are much better nourished and better clothed than their gentile companions of the same social status was established some years ago by special investigation in Leeds, and has been repeatedly confirmed by the careful observation of school doctors in London and elsewhere. I find that Jewish parents are especially anxious that their children should receive early treatment for diseased teeth, and there is little doubt that this forethought serves to shield their children from the many diseases beginning in childhood and adolescence which lead to chronic ill health in the adult. The doctor practicing among the Jews finds that ailing children are brought to him at a much earlier stage of disease than is the case with the children of his other patients; indeed, he acquires in this way valuable opportunities for the study of maladies in their very early stages. It is a thousand pities that advantage cannot be taken of these opportunities along the more systematic lines of the St. Andrew's Institute, in which Sir James MacKenzie and his pupils are conducting painstaking researches into early signs and symptoms and their significance.

Among the poorer classes the doctor cannot fail to be struck by the greater intelligence shown by the Jewish patients, who rarely fail to give him a history of their disease in correct chronological order, and showing considerable powers of accurate observation. If you ask an uneducated Christian patient how long he has had a pain he will probably tell you, "A nice piece now." When you repeat "How long?" he is quite likely to say, "I first had it after our Charlie was married." The Jewish patient, on the other hand, will at once more helpfully reply, e.g., "I first noticed it three weeks next Sunday." The greater powers of observation and the greater intelligence of the poorer Jewish classes have been the cause of not a few rude shocks to the inexperienced and not too competent doctors who have tried to acquire a practice in the East End, with the assets of self-assurance and a breezy, cheerful manner, but without the capacity and the will to make a thorough examination, to form a careful diagnosis and to give an honest explanation and reasoned advice. In medical practice, as in other fields, it is difficult to bluff a Jew.

It is a little surprising when first one works amongst the Jews to find how purely commercial a view they take of their relations with their medical men. In other practices, however poor the patients may be, there grows up before long a bond of personal attachment between the patient and the "family doctor." But with the Jew it is purely a matter of business. When I have been called to see a patient who is just beginning with an acute disease such as pneumonia, and when I have explained that the illness is a serious one likely to last some days at least, I have long ceased to be surprised on asking when to pay my next visit to be told: "We will see how he is to-morrow and let you know if you are to call." I must confess, however, that among my poorer patients it is still with some annoyance that I am met on the doorstep on the occasion of my second or third visit (as arranged) with a polite but firm intimation that the patient being "much better, thank you," I am at liberty to walk away.

The "Unconventional" Jew

In the matter of superseding the doctor who has been attending a patient the Jews display a purely commercial attitude and a kind of deceitfulness which on the whole do not profit them. Until yesterday I was attending a Jewish woman of the lower middle class who for three months has been suffering from

British Government Will Live up to Contract with Jews in Palestine

Bernard Stone, Prominent English Jewish Publicist, Declares Change of British Policy Would Be Contrary to Tradition of Continuity in Foreign Affairs.

By BERNARD STONE

The author of this article, who was secretary to the Sokolow Delegation to the United States, has now returned to America with Dr. Shmarya Levin and Dr. Arthur Ruppin, and will take up a permanent position with the American Keren Hayesod. Prior to his sailing from London, a luncheon was given in his honor, which was addressed by the leading figures of the Zionist movement, including Dr. Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization. Mr. Stone has been very active in English public life, and has an intimate knowledge of British political conditions and leading British statesmen.

Dissatisfaction with the Coalition Government has been growing in England for the last two or three years. The Conservative Party, which was numerically the largest factor in the Coalition, wanted to replace Mr. Lloyd George by a Conservative premier. A Die-Hard party hostile to the Irish settlement, was the spear head of the opposition. The Near East crisis, resulting from the Greek defeat, gave the anti-Coalition elements their chance and the Coalition fell. The question of the Palestine Mandate was not directly involved. It is true that a virulent group of anti-Semites, under the leadership of Lord Sydenham and Mr. Joynson-Hicks, supported by Lord Beaverbrook, the owner of the "Daily Express," and Lord Rothermere, proprietor of the "Daily Mail," used British expenditure on the Palestine garrison to rouse opposition to Zionism, but their efforts are doomed to failure. The "Daily Mail" itself has been compelled to admit the impossibility of a withdrawal from Palestine.

An exactly parallel situation has developed in regard to the Irish question. It was opposition to the Irish Treaty which called the Die-Hard group under Lord Salisbury into being. Lord Salisbury is now a member of the new cabinet which publicly announced that the Irish Treaty would be scrupulously observed by the Government. So also with regard to Palestine. Mr. Bonar Law stated that no matter what they thought of the Zionist policy of the Coalition Government, the obligations of the Palestine Mandate would have to be carried out. Anything else, indeed, would be the reversal of the old standing tradition of continuity in British foreign policy. Whatever Government comes into power will scrupulously carry out all international obligations entered upon by its predecessors. Thus, despite the loud noise of Lord Beaverbrook and the "Daily Express" and the lukewarmness of individual politicians on account of the cost of the British garrison in Palestine no change affecting the Zionist movement is to be anticipated.

One warning must however be sounded. All parties in British politics desire that expenditure on garrisons outside the British Empire should be reduced to a minimum and brought to an end as soon as possible. Unless substantial progress towards the rebuilding of a Jewish national home is made by the Jewish people themselves during the next year or two it will be said that the Jewish people have no real intention of putting their Zionist principles into practice, and consequently the partnership between the British Government and the Jewish people, based on a belief in Jewish sincerity, must be dissolved. Already, before I left England, there were voices heard here and there asking for a time limit to be fixed at the end of which British obligations in Palestine will come to an end.

The moral is obvious. We must justify the confidence of the British Government in the Jewish people by constructive work in Palestine on a large scale in every sphere of human activity.

Only in this way can we avoid giving a handle to our enemies. An adequate response to the needs of the Keren Hayesod is the most effective way of ensuring the continued attachment of the British nation to the Mandate in Palestine.

Palestine from Day to Day

Temporary Work for New Immigrants

New immigrants without means on arrival were kept in the immigrant camp of the Zionist Organization until they were settled at work. This compulsory idleness had a bad effect on the immigrants, weakening the energy and morale with which they came to the country. In order to reduce as far as possible the time spent by immigrants in camps and also the money that was spent on their maintenance it was decided to make use of them as soon as labor and housing were found for the first experiments were made in arranging for them temporary work for immigrants. The work was arranged on the following basis:

No loan grant is allowed to remain in the camp more than three days. Before this time places are found and work for a wage for each immigrant is arranged for with the Labor Department. To put this system into practice means were obtained from three sources:

1. The registration of private employers who reserved a day sometimes once a week to look to the placement of the work turned out.

2. The [illegible] Department [illegible] placed on the said immigrants engaged in this work by the [illegible] for the wages. By this means the immigrant [illegible] [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] of the maintenance of the immigrants.

3. The Labor Department [illegible] a sum of money [illegible] of employment of the work and [illegible] [illegible] selected workmen for training the immigrants. Such sums are given as a rule to institutions or to societies that are interested in such work over a period of several years at [illegible] rates. In this way we prevent wastage in money and energy in the new immigrants caused by their remaining in camps and [illegible].

HELP! HELP!

SUPPOSING you woke up to-morrow morning and found that the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of Toronto had shut its doors. Would it make any difference to you? Would it matter to you if 150 Jewish families, blood of your blood and bone of your bone, would not receive their weekly check? If the rent of these families was unpaid, and they would receive eviction notices? If the milkman did not leave the daily allowance of fresh milk and eggs for sick children, because the Federation failed? If poor, lying-in women and new-born babes were neglected to their own fate, because the Federation has ceased to operate? Would it affect your peace of mind any? Well, there have been many anxious moments in the last year when we have asked ourselves these questions, and because we could not conceive that you would be indifferent, that the Federation has not closed its doors and the poor and needy, the homeless and the neglected are still being taken care of? But do not imagine for one moment that all is well. The local Federation of Jewish Charities is in a critical condition. Though the Federation has struggled on, there is absolutely no assurance that it can continue to do so, unless—well, unless the hundreds of Jewish middle-class people who are enjoying a decent income will support the local Jewish charities.

The Federation to-day has an income that covers less than half of its minimum needs. This half is obtained from the more or less well-to-do Jewish families of our city. These subscribers represent about 20 per cent. of those who should be subscribers. There are hundreds, yea, thousands, of small Jewish merchants with substantial incomes; there are workers holding down excellent and steady positions who do not contribute a single copper to maintaining the Jewish poor of the city. Mr. Non-Subscriber, in all fairness—aren't the poor your poor, as well as the poor of those of us who do subscribe? Why should you, Mr. Non-Subscriber, hide behind the subscription of those who support the Federation? Do not find an excuse not to give. If there is anything wrong with the Federation, come in and help us improve it.

If the Federation has not been able to do constructive charity, it is not the fault of the Federation but of those who should give and do not. The Federation is a democratic organization. It is composed of ten constituent societies and institutions, each of which is autonomous in its own sphere of social service, excepting that their activities are co-ordinated by an able and trained executive director, who sees to it that there shall be no overlapping and duplication, and that every dollar spent shall represent one hundred cents of value to the poor.

The forty-five members of the Board of Trustees of the Federation are democratically elected and are chosen from the best men and women in the Jewish community, regardless of their wealth, religious views or synagog affiliation. Only their genuine interest in the poor, their reputation as community workers, matters. The Federation is therefore everyone's organization and not the special hobby of any individual or clique.

The administrative expenses of the Federation amount to less than 10 per cent. of the total amount collected, and distributed to the poor. Over the 10 per cent. spent for office rent and expenses, salaries of workers, etc., is not to be charged to overhead, but rather to personal services. When you or we get into trouble, we go to our doctor, to our lawyer, to our minister, for professional advice and services. When the poor get into social difficulties, the trained social worker is to them a social doctor who studies the causes which bring them into a condition of dependence. By experience and training, he is able to suggest the remedy which may bring the family back to a normal condition of self-support and self-respect. We can not think of any better way of rendering constructive charity than to help one to help himself.

If the Federation closed its doors to-morrow, the hundreds of human lives dependent upon the Federation for the bare necessities of life would be in despair. The community would be stirred to its very depths by the heart-rending cries of these hundreds of unfortunates. Jewish beggars who are a rarity to-day, due to the Federation, would re-appear on the streets and on your door-steps. Handkerchief collections would again be taken up. You would be pestered daily, almost to distraction, to contribute for this and to that poor family or fund. You would get no accounting for your money. The poor would be neglected because when a poor family becomes everybody's business, it turns out to be nobody's business. Families would be pauperized, our poor would be compelled to lose their self-respect and become "shnorrers." In a word, we would return to that chaos which we remember existed before the Federation came into being.

We ask, is it fair to those who subscribe and who are doing their share—and some, let it be said to their credit, even doing better than their share—to carry the whole load whilst hundreds neglect their responsibility? If the Federation could get 2,000 new subscribers who would contribute from $6 to $25 per year, according to their ability and income, the Jewish poor of the city could be adequately and satisfactorily looked after. Instead of having to give a family with six children, where the breadwinner is ill and can no longer work at his trade, $10 a week—which barely buys the bare necessities, and in time pauperizes the family—if the Federation had an adequate income, it could give this family a few hundred dollars and establish the breadwinner in some small store or shop, where the family could earn an income sufficient to maintain itself without having to secure charity. In time this family might even become a contributor to the Federation. It has happened that subscribers to the Federation have become recipients of charity, and those adequately helped by the Federation have become contributors. None of us knows what the future holds in store for us.

Charity is, after all, a paying-back into the community fund by those more fortunately situated, a fraction of what we have earned, in order to help others and incidentally ourselves. If we could only appreciate the fact that an ounce of prevention in social service, more so than in medicine, is worth not a pound but a ton of cure, more people would give. Giving is a habit. Our advice is: Get the habit, for "it blesseth him who gives as well as him who receives."

Our Federation is the only guarantee that our poor have that somebody cares. The only trouble is that not enough of us care. Hence the poor must go without many things that the Federation would like to provide them with, if it could.

In order to meet a deficiency in the overdrawn account of the Federation and also to start a Free Loan Society, much needed in the city, the generous, big-hearted Toronto Bnai Brith lodge are arranging a Community Theater Night in Loew's Uptown Theater on Monday evening November 27. "Welcome, Stranger" will be given. No better and more appropriate title for the play could have been selected. It will be a welcome to the strangers to Federation. No collection will be taken up that night, and those who absent themselves from this affair, and who do not purchase tickets, will be derelict in their duty toward the Jewish poor of the city. It is therefore the duty of everyone to come. If you have not yet secured seats, do so at once. A week or so later the Federation will start on a drive for 2,000 new subscribers. Every provision is being made to assure the success of this drive. A list of 4,000 names of non-subscribers who should be members of the Federation, have been carefully selected and divided into 62 districts. What are needed are 200 volunteers who will give up a few hours each day for 3 days to canvass these districts. The leaders of the Federation are certain that no difficulty will be encountered in getting new subscribers, provided the required number of volunteer canvassers are forthcoming. If every Jew who can give, does his share, the burden will not fall so heavily on the few. It therefore behooves each and every one of us to volunteer our services. Not our money, but our time is required in order to place the Federation on a safe and secure foundation. We feel certain that Toronto Jewry will not permit this drive for justice and fair play to our poor to fail.

The roof is finished on our new plant

The finishing touches have been applied to the vast expanse of roof that is to cover the most elaborate plant in Canada devoted exclusively to family washings at our new building on Ossington Avenue, just south of Dundas Street. Ready and waiting to be installed is equipment that will do more to help Toronto housewives in their wash problems than anything that has hitherto been attempted. Keep in mind the fact that we are doing one kind of laundry better than any other plant, namely — family washings — and our very special method is called "Semi-Finished." Soft water — pure soap — separate washings—and lowest prices. Let us serve you.

inoperable cancer, which was suspected within a fortnight of the appearance of the early symptoms, and was definitely diagnosed ten days later in conjunction with a titled specialist who is the most eminent authority in the world on the disease of the organ in question. The truth was told there and then to the relatives; the patient, to whom the truth has not been disclosed, has been kept free from pain and has been consistently cheerful. At the recommendation of an acquaintance another doctor has now taken over the case, and has assured the patient that she will be much better, if not quite well, in six weeks. I am not without sympathy for the other doctor: my experience tells me that it is extremely unlikely that he has been told of the verdict or even of the visit of the specialist.

A similar suppressio veri brought another patient to me who, five minutes after I had examined him and made a diagnosis of gallstones, informed me that it was only the day before he had walked out of one of our leading hospitals literally on the eve of an operation for that very complaint. I do not regard this as an example of nervous fear. He had conceived an idea that the examination which he had undergone since entering the institution had not been sufficiently painstaking, and before submitting to the inevitable he wished to have the diagnosis confirmed by an independent and certainly unprejudiced judgment.—London Jewish World.

Because he found his position under the anti-Jewish government untenable, Herr Oppenheimer, director of the political department in the Austrian Ministry for Foreign Affairs, has tendered his resignation. He was the only Jew in Austria occupying an important post. In the days of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy Herr Oppenheimer was engaged in the consular service in the Orient. After the revolution, Dr. Renner, then Minister for Foreign Affairs, appointed him director of his political department.

The majority of the members of the newly formed Fascist government are anti-Zionistic, their anti-Zionism being not so much a matter of opposition to the Jews as opposition to the British policy. Their cabinet includes one pro-Zionist, Colonna Ciccarro, Minister of Posts, who is the former chairman of the Pro-Israel, an organization consisting of non-Jewish members whose purpose is to aid the Zionists in their attempt to establish a Jewish national home in Palestine.

Our feud with the Jewish Tribune (we started it) promises to assume ghastly proportions. We haven't heard a single word from the old rag so we naturally conclude that the editorial swivel chair holds a shuddering mass of what was once authority. To those of our readers who missed the first installment in their feverish perusal of the social columns, let us say that it was anent the Jewish Tribune's announcement that it would sue any of us who used the stuff for which it paid (well, let it go at that paid), without giving due credit to the source. Last week we took up husky cudgels in behalf of the Jewish editors whose hands are calloused from the weekly wielding of shears on the ground that the Tribune's apparent dignity was a mere bit of arrogant hostility. We confidently expect things to come to a pretty pass as soon as the prostrated Tribune has recovered from our sand-bagging, but we are prepared. If the worst comes to the worst we can borrow the Personal Mention columns as theatre of war and also drop out a few page ads. every week until the Tribune is biting its nails in chagrin because other papers unflatteringly refuse to steal any of its gems.

'Twas cruelly cold—for our story's purposes, anyway. The scene, Massey Hall; the time the night of Paderewski and his piano. A cordon of police and plain clothes men, more of them than we knew were in the world outside of Mack Sennett comedies, stood staunch guard about the place to make a Roman holiday of any Jews who might cause trouble for Ignace, the alleged anti-Semite. For all we know there were ambulances to hear away the casuals of the spree (to paraphrase the title of William McFee's book.) Meanwhile the brave and the fair whirred up to the door and alighted and meanwhile no arsenal-bearing Hebrews appeared and none with decayed eggs, either. We are not sorry for the shivering sleuths dressed up in their best chin straps, who were too silly to know that Jews don't go in for mob scenes, but we do feel for the widows and orphans in case any policeman died of cold in the head. We are against all tag days as a rule, but we are so incensed over the fact that these men were uselessly subjected to inclement winds that we shall be glad to inaugurate a movement for the sake of the surviving widows and children should there be need as the result of this folly.

Henry Morgenthau, former minister to Turkey, is a Jew, altho the Globe, which front-paged him, didn't say so because it saves the word to apply to such of our race as happen to appear in police court. Mr. Morgenthau, by the way, is the author of "All in a Life Time," a recent book of which if we were a book-reviewer by trade we should say that we were unable to read more than one chapter. As Heywood Broun, New York critic, once said of a book of which he read only 40 pages: "I could go no farther. There was only one thing to do and that was to lie down and wait for the St. Bernards."

"One of the Toronto daily papers, so says our contemporary, the "Canadian Jewish Review," is all excited over the rapid increase in the number of Jewish houses of worship and seems to view with alarm the growth of the Jewish population in Toronto. Well, I wouldn't get excited about what any daily newspaper in Toronto said. Like the vaudeville comedian used to say about Philadelphia, so I say about Toronto. "I spent a week there one day last month." Toronto is a narrow-minded city and looks the part. The only thing that it seemed to me that was needed to complete the sum total of the happiness of the majority of the populace was to resurrect the Blue Laws from New England and transplant them in Toronto. It is easily understood why the Gentile groups of that enlarged village would view with alarm the increase in the number of Jews."—Charles Joseph in Pittsburgh Criterion.

Oh, yes yes. And James Gibbons Huneker once wrote: "I'd rather be a fried oyster in Philadelphia than Lord Mayor of London."

On November 26, the club will hear Mr. N. W. Jacobs, B.C.L., of Montreal, who is to lecture on Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." Invitations for Sunday night's lecture at the club-rooms can be had from any of the members on request.

Friday, November 24, there will be a paper delivered on "Free Trade," followed by a general discussion.

ZION BENEVOLENT

The Zion Benevolent Association held a social evening with the object of forming a ladies' auxiliary. Mr. Samuels was chairman and Mr. Himmell was social convenor. Interesting addresses were given by Rev. Mendelbaum of Palestine, and Mr. N. Phillips of the Bnai Brith. Mrs. D. Dunkelman and Mrs. J. Selick also spoke. Mrs. Selick welcomed the guests on behalf of Hadassah and offered them co-operation. Mr. Grafstein delighted the gathering with several Jewish recitations.

The municipal council of Wilmersdorf, a suburb of Berlin, has rejected a motion to rename Koenigsallee, where Rathenau was murdered, to Rathenausallee. This refusal is considered by the liberal press as an indication of the reactionary spirit which soon followed the general public indignation which the Rathenau murder has caused. Reactionary propaganda has now reawakened and a violent anti-Jewish agitation is carried on throughout Germany on a much larger scale than before Rathenau's murder.

Replying to an interpellation by Deputy Fredrich, well known anti-Semite and founder of the Hungarian Fascisti, Count Bethlen, the prime minister, declared that the government would adopt suitable measures against the anti-Jewish policy of the Fascistis. "I, too, will conduct the Christian policy," the prime minister announced, "but this policy is not anti-Jewish. The government will not permit anti-Jewish excesses or agitation in the press which may lead to excesses."

Professor Albert Einstein plans to visit Palestine in the spring of 1923, on his return from Japan, where his theory will be tested.

TORONTO SECTION, COUNCIL OF JEWISH WOMEN

Have you seen any of the "Stop and Shop at Vanity Fair" tickets which are in circulation? They are just a reminder of the Bazaar and Children's Chanukah Fete which are being arranged by the junior and senior sections of the Council of Jewish Women.

Delightful plans are in progress for the children's afternoon, and numberless lovely things are being prepared to be sold at the bazaar, which takes place on Thursday, December 14, at Oddfellows' Hall, College Street. Tell the children a good time is being arranged for them, so they may enjoy the pleasure of anticipation. A souvenir for each child in attendance.

A large representation of the Council membership was present at the general meeting of the Council on Thursday, November 16, to hear Dr. Locke, chief librarian of Toronto, speak on the "Value of Good Reading."

Mrs. Charles Draimin gave a report of Community House matters and announced that the purchase of beds and accessories meant the opening of the dormitories for friendless girls.

Mrs. Pollock sang beautifully and brought to a close a splendid meeting.

The workers of the fancy work booth of the Vanity Fair and Chanukah Fete have been busily engaged at the home of the convenor of the booth, Mrs. J. B. Danson, 179 Jameson Avenue, where the ladies meet every Wednesday afternoon to sew. A large amount of material has been donated and is waiting to be worked on. Any ladies desiring to offer their services kindly call Mrs. Danson, Parkdale 2964.

DAUGHTERS OF ISRAEL SOCIETY

Daughters of Israel Society held a successful meeting on the 6th instant at their permanent meeting rooms in Royal Templars' Hall, with a large, enthusiastic attendance. A liberal sum of dues was collected, and a proportional amount distributed to distressed was reported. All sisters were reported well except Sister Herman, Melville Avenue. The theater benefit undertaking was reported making progress, as some of the ticket-selling committee have reported the sentiment of the charitable public to have made approval of a comedy in preference to a drama.

In the name of the society and the sick and distressed who were promptly assisted by liberal silent donations from its relief committee within the last few years, we beg to extend our grateful appreciation to the charitable public who supported the holding of our benefit theater night at the Standard, January 14. Principal thanks are due to the ticket-selling ladies' committee, headed by Mrs. Esther Wilson and Mrs. Sarah Smith.

YOUNG JUDEA

The Young Judea circles are now well organized and under the supervision of able leaders. Many of the clubs are issuing papers, which clearly show the interest and enthusiasm everywhere present in the organization.

At present, the membership of the circle is at capacity. Much credit is due to Mr. D. Cohen, our leader. The club's last social was a decided success. A novel affair is to be held shortly.

In the early part of December, the Young Judea will hold its annual Chanukah entertainment. Miss S. Shaeffer, Messrs. B. Shulman, S. Sumberg and D. Cohen, as convenor, have been appointed on the committee. The program will be supplied by Young Judea talent and will include refreshments and dancing.

Prizes to be given for the best essays on topics of Jewish interest are three: one for the junior, one for the intermediate, and one for the senior circles. Further particulars will be disclosed later.

Announcement

TO ALL CONGREGATIONS, SOCIETIES, CLUBS and other Organizations

The Canadian Jewish Review will issue early in December a number devoted to the Jewish organizations, benevolent, religious, educational and social, of Toronto.

For this number we ask the co-operation of every organization by appointing a committee of not more than two members of an organization, to furnish the Review with a short outline of its history, its aims, etc. There will be no charge for this.

We would suggest that each organization, through its committee, get in touch with the office of the Review immediately, either in person or by phone, to make the proper arrangements. All copy must be in the office of the Review by December 1st.

Twenty organizations have already signified their intention to supply data of their respective organizations. If your club, society or congregation is not represented in the number, you will have only the carelessness of your executive to blame.

CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

Allow me to thank you most heartily for Rabbi Brickner's splendid editorial in last week's issue of the REVIEW. The building committee, as well as everyone interested in the new Talmud Torah, sincerely appreciate the "heartiest congratulations" and good wishes with which he hails the commencement of actual work on the Talmud Torah.

I am confident that Rabbi Brickner's clear analysis of our educational problems will bring home to many the great need of the institution now under construction, and will go far towards creating that harmonious co-operation whereon the success of this colossal undertaking solely depends.

For this, on behalf of the building committee, I thank him.

Sincerely yours,
JULIUS L. SIEGAL.

Members of the faculty and alumni of the University of Chicago recently contributed a fund for a portrait of Prof. A. A. Michelson, the famous physicist, who for thirty years has been head of the department of physics in the university. The portrait, which has just been completed by Ralph Clarkson, the widely known Chicago painter, is regarded as one of his most striking and successful pieces of work.

The anti-Semitic section of the Lemberg University student body declared a twenty-four hour strike by way of expressing their indignation at the abolishing of the per centum limit act regarding Jewish admissions. A mass meeting of the students was held, at which the Polish Minister of Instruction was roundly denounced for his liberal stand on the question of Jewish enrollment.

The cornerstone for the new dispensary building presented to the Mt. Sinai Hospital of Philadelphia, Pa., by Mr. William Lipkin in honor of his parents, was laid last week with impressive ceremonies. It is estimated that the dispensary will be able to take care of from 110,000 to 125,000 patients yearly and will allow a much more extensive study of the cases coming to the various clinics.

Storage Gas Water Heater

The Royal Automatic and Marvel Non-Automatic are the only gas water heaters in the world which spread water into a thin, flowing sheet so that it can be heated with a small amount of gas. They do this by means of the B-M Water Spreader—the most ingenious element ever devised for heating water. This patented device is found exclusively in the Royal and Marvel and is not to be confused with open discs used in other heaters. Besides giving superior hot water service, Bastian-Morley heaters cost less to buy, to install and to operate. See one in actual operation at:

Having previously refused permission for the meeting on the campus, the students stormed the president's residence, compelling him to permit them to hold the meeting the next day.

The Coal Shortage

Substitutes for Hard Coal

Even if a maximum production is reached, and maintained in the Anthracite Mining fields during the next few months, it is not to be expected, or hoped, after the suspension of twenty-three weeks, or more, that the sixty per cent. of the average requirements promised Canada will cross the frontier. Amongst retail coal men interviewed, it is generally conceded that the householder will be compelled to supplement his allotted supply of domestic sizes with Coke, or Bituminous Coals.

Thus far, we have been enjoying good coal shortage weather. This has aided in keeping the average citizen in an optimistic frame of mind, and he still believes that everything will come out all right. But he does not stop to reflect that the loss of tonnage incurred in the protracted period of suspension can never be recouped, and that the outlying sections of the country require immediate attention. Practically no Anthracite left the mines, or was received in Toronto during the summer, and as much more coal is burned during the fall and winter months, than is hauled by the railroads during that period, it follows that a very considerable tonnage of coal must be mined, transported, and stored by the retail coal merchants during the spring and summer if their customers are to be protected and the contingency of a shortage is to be avoided.

This year there was no coal to be stored, and so the question of a substitute to piece out the partial supply of Anthracite must be considered. These substitutes may be Bituminous Coal, or Coke, preferably the latter. Toronto furnaces are built for burning hard coal, and the hot air furnace predominates over hot water, or steam heating plants. Burning Bituminous Coal will mean dirtier houses, for though much of the soot given off will go out the chimney, the greater portion will remain to clog the narrow flues and in the case of small hot water and steam furnaces, necessitate a weekly cleaning if the flues are to be kept open. In this connection, the dangers of sulphur dioxide must not be overlooked, as the soot from Soft Coal, when damp, produces sulphuric acid, so quickly eating out furnace pipes.

Coke, on the other hand, is clean, does not choke up the flues like Soft Coal, gives out a hot fire, and requires much less frequent attention. The use of some Gas Cokes sometimes causes trouble on account of their relatively small ash contents which permits the hot fire coming into direct contact with the grate bars, but, on the other hand, if a By-Product Hard Coke, such as is advertised elsewhere in our columns, is used, no such danger is incurred. All Coke responds very quickly to air, and care must be used to regulate the drafts so as not to overheat the furnace. Many customers, who have had their bins filled with Solvay Coke during the season, write the agents that they prefer this fuel to Anthracite. A small booklet giving directions, how to stoke the furnace, and other interesting information regarding this fuel, can be had from the agents for the asking. These directions for burning Coke can be condensed into five rules as follows:

1. Carry a deep bed of fuel. A bed about 18 inches gives best results.
2. Use very little draft after once the fire has started and keep it always under control.
3. Do not stir the fuel bed. Clean the fire sparingly in the morning if possible.
4. Use sized Coke: one-half to two inches for furnaces, boilers or stoves, one-half to four inches for open fire grates.
5. Do not allow ashes to accumulate in the fire-pit.

Though long since divorced from the current of Spanish life, Jews still retain an abiding interest in that country. Hence they will heartily welcome "Espana Invertebrada," a book by Senor Ortega y Casset, dealing with the causes of Spanish decadence. The harsh treatment of the Jews is given a proper share in the decline of a land that resorted to the most ruthless means to secure a sterile uniformity of creed.

LOEW'S YONGE ST. THEATRE

When Viola Dana, then a child of five years, made her stage debut in the New York production of "The Poor Little Rich Girl," she wore a gingham apron—the product of her mother's busy needle. The apron, one of the treasured possessions of the little star, was carefully tucked away in a small trunk that stands in a corner of her dressing room at the Metro studios in Hollywood.

One day Director Harry Beaumont, who has produced her starring picture, "The Five Dollar Baby," which is being shown with regular vaudeville at Loew's Yonge Street Theatre next week, looked at an apron that had been provided by Metro's wardrobe department and shook his head.

"Why not get an apron like the little thing you wore in 'The Poor Little Rich Girl'?" asked the director. "That one one would just fit this role."

"That's easy," said Viola.

A moment later, clad in the self-same apron in which she made her first childish New York hit, Miss Dana was before the camera, ready for work.

"I'm glad she's not as big as she's famous," said the director.

Irvin S. Cobb is the author of "The Five Dollar Baby," which has been adapted for the screen by Rex Taylor. John Arnold photographed it, and A. F. Mantz was art and technical director.

OTTAWA

Mrs. A. Rosenthal, Sr., who has been spending several weeks in New York, has returned home.

Miss Vigdor, of Montreal, is visiting Mrs. Ben Goldfield.

Miss Yetta Rosen, of Montreal, is the guest of Miss Sarah Horwitz.

Miss Anne Holzman, who has been spending a couple of weeks with Mrs. H. Feinberg, in Detroit, has returned home.

Miss Bella Silverman, who was visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Mendels, has returned to her home in Sudbury.

A number of Ottawa sporting enthusiasts travelled to Montreal for the Varsity-Queen's football match, amongst whom were Messrs. Joe Dover, Bob Edelstein, D. Bilsky, I. Ellenson, I. Zivian, Yaffe and others.

On November 15 a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. G. Cohen (nee Rebecca Shapiro).

Mrs. B. Mendels entertained at an informal house dance in honor of her sister, Miss Bella Silverman. The daintily arranged supper table was centered with autumn flowers and was presided over by Mrs. I. L. Cohen and Miss Hilda Kaminsky. They were assisted by the Misses Mary, Bertha and Pearl Slonemsky, Miss B. Sugarman, Miss Pauline Gould and Miss Anne Golub.

The great event of the season to which all the Jews of Ottawa are eagerly looking forward, will be the Hadassah Bazaar, to be held in Orange Hall on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 28 and 29. The convenors of the various booths are hard at work, indeed have been so for months, and each booth promises to be a little finer than the next. Other attractions are being arranged, and every visitor to the Hadassah Bazaar will be assured of having a good time. Wednesday afternoon will be especially devoted to the children; they will be admitted free, and will find much to delight them when once inside the doors. Mrs. Pinco is arranging a special program for the amusement of the youngsters.

Miss Mildred Gorfinkle entertained informally at the tea hour on Sunday afternoon, in honor of Miss Calla Lecker, of Montreal. Mrs. J. N. Nathanson presided at the tea table, which was decorated with a prettily arranged basket of yellow chrysanthemums. The ices were cut by Mrs. B. Mendels. Assisting in the tea room were the Misses Ray and Ethel Gorfinkle, Miss Anne Golub and Miss Hilda Kaminsky.

"Just a real good time," was the verdict of all those who attended the dance given on Sunday evening under the joint auspices of the Y.W. & Y.M.H.A. These dances, which are quite informal, are very popular with the young people. Bregman's orchestra was in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Freedman have returned from Chicago.

The tenth annual banquet of the Ottawa Hebrew Sick Benefit Association took place last week. Mr. N. Metrick, the president, presided, and in his opening address told how the Association had grown from a membership of seven in 1912 to its present membership of over 200 men. Mr. Lightstone, the first president, was present, and gave ten particular reasons why the Association should celebrate its tenth anniversary. Mr. I. L. Cohen, the secretary, proposed the toast of the king. Mention was made of the fact that three years ago a banquet was given for Jewish war veterans. After full justice had been done to the repast, several delightful vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Anna Wolfe Margosches, who was accompanied by Miss Esther Richter. A violin selection by Miss L. Stein, accompanied by her sister, and a piano solo by Miss Mortiner, completed the program.

A musical comedy in four acts, entitled "The Girls of My Dreams," will be staged on December 4 by Mr. Leonard Wolstein. The cast includes Charles Abrams, who is a well known comedian among the "Y" members, and should prove quite a drawing card. Dave Millarsis chosen for the role of leading man, and will be assisted by the following young ladies: the Misses Hilda Kaminsky, Rose and Esther Richter, Freda Lecovan, Beck Benewick, Freda Carlofsky and Lillian Gould.

Under the convenorship of Mrs. Max Mitchell, assisted by Mrs. S. Goldstine, Mrs. C. Lyon, Mrs. Sternberg, Mrs. Horowitz and Mrs. Leipsic, a variety dance and entertainment was held in the ballroom suite of the Royal Alexandra Hotel, Tuesday evening, in aid of the Jewish Orphanage. Special music was arranged for dancing, and during the intermission turns were put on by the week's members of the Orpheum, Pantages and Capitol theatres.

Entertainment in Aid of Jewish Orphanage
Shaarey Zedek Sisterhood

The Sisterhood of the Shaarey Zedek Congregation, comprising the wives of members, have started their work for the year under most favorable auspices. The President, Mrs. Max Heppner, assisted by her executive, have laid out a program of work, to accomplish which they have formed the following committees:

Girl Guides—whom they will assist in any way possible.

Juvenile Court — which attended whenever needs arise and delinquents are looked after and protected.

House Committee—who will attend to interior decorations, etc., of the Synagog building, and are also active in securing good attendance for the Friday evening services during the winter.

The Sisterhood also hold social evenings, to which the members of the Congregation are invited, the executive meetings being held once a month.

The first of the social evenings given by the Sisterhood was held recently and largely attended, when an interesting program was given, the speaker of the evening being Mr. Marcus Hyman. Those who contributed to the musical program of the evening were: Miss Helen Huggard, soprano; Miss Zoe Isaacs, pianist, and Mr. Nathan Diner, violinist. At the close of the program refreshments were served.

The Sisterhood entertained at a silver tea at the home of the President, Mrs. Max Heppner, at which the sum of $123 was realized for the general funds.

Mr. Osovsky will be accompanied by the president, Mr. Allen Bronfman, Mr. Stein, Rabbi Kahonovitch and a number of other prominent speakers of Winnipeg. The greatest feature of the tour will be the showing of a two-reel film entitled "A Day at the Orphanage," which has been shown in Winnipeg at the Walker Theatre recently to a capacity house and created much enthusiasm. The film tells in a story-like manner the life of the children in the Orphanage.

Anshe Sholom

A card party and dance held by the choir of the Anshe Sholom on Tuesday evening, November 15, in the Assembly Rooms of the Synagog, proved a great success, both financially and socially. A large number were present and enjoyed a very delightful time. The whist prizes were won by Miss Tiba Taylor and Mr. Al Taylor. Bridge prizes, Miss Belle Cohen, Mrs. S. B. Lyons, Mr. S. B. Lyons, and Seymour Lyons. The success of the affair was due to the efforts of Miss Hattie Morris and Miss Annie Cohen.

Grand Order of Israel

The Grand Order of Israel celebrated their fifteenth anniversary on Sunday evening, November 12. A banquet had been arranged and held in the club-rooms of the Beth Jacob Synagog. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion, the tables looking particularly attractive with chrysanthemums and other flowers. The meeting opened with the singing of the Hatikvah and about one hundred and fifty members sat down to a splendidly prepared meal. The toastmaster for the evening was Mr. Dan Kauffman. Mr. Isaac Lewis, a past Noble Master, in his toast to the Lodge, made an eloquent appeal for a Ladies' Auxiliary. The ladies, wives of members, unanimously agreed to organize themselves into one. Mr. Percy Wright, Noble Master, in his address, said he appreciated the work of the older members and thanked them for their support. One of the founders of the Lodge, Mr. I. Lewis, was present, the only one of the original members left. Rabbi Berger delivered a most eloquent address, and also made an appeal for the Auxiliary. Other speakers were B. Raphael, a past Master, and Bro. H. Cohen, also Lew Miller and Meyer Chertkoff. Several musical numbers were given and dancing. The success of the affair was due to Mr. Dave Sutton, who worked hard to make this a wonderful event.

Beth Jacob Social Circle

The regular meeting of the Beth Jacob Social Circle was held on Sunday evening in the club-rooms of the synagog. A presentation was made to Mr. Dave Robinson, ex-president of the Circle, for his valuable work during his term of office. Miss Minnie Isaacs was also presented with a beautiful ivory mirror. Miss Isaacs, who has been an active worker of the organization, is leaving the city, and will be greatly missed. Mr. Julius Cohen played two violin selections, with Miss Dorothy Epstein at the piano. Miss Pauline Sweet gave a delightful reading. The Ladies' Aid of Beth Jacob and the Beth Jacob Social Circle are holding a whist party and dance on November 26, the proceeds for the synagog.

Council of Jewish Women

An executive meeting of the Council of Jewish Women was held on Tuesday afternoon, November 14, Mrs. Levy presiding. The various committees' reports were submitted, the outstanding feature being the opening of the season of the classes in English for immigrants. Twenty applicants have been enrolled with an outstanding list of twenty more, who will shortly be accommodated. Credit is due to the teachers who have volunteered their services, Miss A. Robinson, Miss Bessie Soskin and Mr. I. Siegel. The re-opening of the Saturday night recreation centre in the Hilda Building, saw a class far in excess of that of last year. Miss Miller, who is in charge of the instruction and activities of the girls ranging from ages 12 to 16, is doing splendid work, but owing to the fact that the class is so large and promises to be still more so, the executive have decided that it will be necessary to engage the services of a physical culture instructress to assist Miss Miller and her able assistants in their work of calisthenics and folk dancing. A program of weekly instruction and a monthly social for the girls have been outlined, which, no doubt, will be of interest to all who attend these classes.

Arrangements have been made for Chanukah festivities for the recreation girls, to take place on December 16. Also preparations for the Chanukah festival for the members' children, who will be the recipients of gifts and goodies on the following Tuesday afternoon, December 19. This promises to be of great interest.

Another Big Sister was appointed for one of our needy, besides the reports of other Big Sisters present.

A program for the coming year was outlined to be brought before the general body at the regular meeting, which will be held on Tuesday evening, November 21, at the United Hebrew Building, 58 Vine Street.

Mr. Al. Shevelle, of Montreal, was a visitor in town for the week-end.

Miss May Stein and Miss Clara Godfrey were visitors over the week-end with Mrs. M. Beube.

Miss Raphael, of Port Arthur, is visiting Mrs. Morris, Rutherford Ave.

Mrs. I. Levy has returned from Buffalo where she has been for the last two weeks.

Mrs. M. Lepofsky, Streetsville, Ont., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Goldstein, Queen Street North.

Miss Belle Rosen, Buffalo, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Klein, James Street North.

Mrs. M. Silverman gave a bridge luncheon at her home on Blake Street, the proceeds for the Deborah Ladies' Aid Society. This proved a most enjoyable affair as well as profitable.

EDMONTON

Mr. and Mrs. S. Lauer entertained about forty-five of their friends on the occasion of their tenth wedding anniversary. The prize winners at cards were: Mrs. Diamond, Mrs. Frantzman and Mrs. Karp. A delicious buffet supper was served at midnight. Mr. and Mrs. Lauer were the recipients of many lovely gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Rothstein have moved to Edmonton and will reside here in the future. Mrs. Rothstein is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Pinsky.

A most enjoyable party was given by Miss Muriel Ostry at the home of her parents on Saturday evening. Games, dancing and music were the order of the evening and tempting refreshments were served by the hostess. During the evening Miss Dora Dower danced several graceful dances.

The regular monthly business and social meeting was held by the Hadassah. After the business was disposed of, cards were played. Mrs. R. Cristal and Mrs. B. Frantzman carrying off the honors.

For the purpose of bringing about a closer union between the members of the Senior and Junior Councils, the girls of the Junior Council entertained the Senior Council on Thursday evening at the Zionist club-rooms. Mrs. Friedman, the President of the Senior Council, and Miss Esther Garfin, President of the Junior Council, both gave splendid addresses. Miss Dora Dower entertained with a few enjoyable dances. TIMMINS, ONT.

A tea social was held here in June under the auspices of the Daughters of Israel. It was ably conducted by Mrs. H. Shenkman and Mrs. S. Bucovetsky. A vote of thanks was tendered them, also to Mrs. S. Feldman for gift of beautiful wrist-watch, which brought in a profit of $33.40, pledged to the National Fund. $75 was sent to the Hadassah Medical Organization. Plans are being made for the Jewel Fund.

In October a dance was held, with Mrs. F. Shankman as convenor, assisted by Miss Alice Martin. $33 was made to be forwarded to the Chaluzim.

In order to enable the Sick Fund to organize its medical work in a proper manner and in order to maintain suitable relations between it and the Hadassah, these two institutions have come to an agreement as to the organization of the medical work in various places.

The work of the Sick Fund is based in principle on the common support of its members, but existing conditions do not permit it as yet to maintain itself solely from this source. The majority of workmen exist under unsatisfactory hygienic conditions, lack of dwellings (about 2,000 workmen are living in tents), bad economic conditions (unemployment), and a large number of workmen suffer in the early years from the climate, to which they are unaccustomed. These conditions prevent the Sick Fund from carrying on solely on the basis of the payments of its members without outside assistance.

Cultural Work

The importance of cultural work has increased greatly, especially during the recent period of the arrival of thousands of immigrants from all parts of Golath. The spread of the Hebrew language and cultural work amongst the workers has developed very considerably. This work is one of the most urgent needs in our general work for the development of culture in Palestine. The cultural committee of the Labor Organization with its means and by the help of a budget allotted for the purposes, devotes all its powers to carry out this important need; about 35 teachers are working in this important work in seven agricultural districts; in six stations where workmen are engaged in public works, and in three colonies and three towns. The number of pupils is about 1,000. Besides the existence of a central library in Tel-Aviv, where there are about 19,000 books, there are also libraries in Jaffa, Haifa and Jerusalem, and six reading rooms in various colonies and settlements, as well as travelling libraries amongst the railway workers.

The East-West Players, of New York City, one of the most significant of Little Theatre groups in America, are about to inaugurate the current season. The spread they promise comprises the following one-act plays: "Dinner," by Ferenc Molnar; "Fancy Free," by Stanley Houghton; "Progress" by St. John Ervine, and "The Turtle Dove," by Margaret Scott Oliver. Mr. Gustav Blum, frequent contributor to "The American Hebrew," is in charge of the staging.

The action of the Inter-Parliamentary Conference in Vienna criticising the anti-Semitic regime in Hungary, has given the "Awakening Magyars" fresh cause for anti-Jewish outbursts. The Catholic Bishop, Prohaszka, one of the spiritual leaders of the above organization, recommends the application of the methods of the Fascisti in Italy, in order to solve the Jewish problem in a manner satisfactory to the super-patriots of Budapest.

Falashas Ask Help

An appeal for $35,000 from the Jews of America is being made by the American Pro-Falasha committee in behalf of the Falashas. Toronto's quota is $300, and will help these people recover their faith, which has been greatly undermined by Christian missionaries. The present campaign is being endorsed by the Central Conference of American Rabbis and the Council of Jewish Women.

The Falashas are a group of Jews who live in Abyssinia. They came into this land in Africa over two thousand years ago, and were separated from their fellow Jews in that inaccessible country. They are called Falashas by the Abyssinians, which, in the Abyssinian language, means "stranger," "exile," or "immigrant." This name alone proves that they came from another land. The name they give themselves is "Beta Israel," "the house of Israel." They live in scattered communities. There were once over 100,000 of them, but wars and conversions to Christianity have reduced their number to 50,000.

Information about the Falashas was first brought to the world by Christian missionaries and travelers. The first Jew to seek out the Falashas was Professor Joseph Halvey of the Sorbonne at Paris, France. His journey into Abyssinia took place in 1868. His pupil, Dr. Jacques Faitlovitch, has taken up this task and has made it his life's work. Since 1904 he has made four expeditions into their midst. He is about to leave on his fifth expedition.

The Falashas believe in one God and refuse to make any images of God or to bow before them, following the Ten Commandments. Their bible and all their sacred books are written in Gheez, the classical language of the Abyssinians. They observe the sabbath and the holidays, and still retain the practice of the ancient Jewish sacrificial cult. Christian missionaries are endeavoring to convert all Falashas to Christianity. The effort of Dr. Faitlovitch during the last few years, since 1904, has effectually checked this proselytizing. The Falashas now look to the Jews of the world to help them remain true to their faith.

They earn their living as farmers, blacksmiths, masons, potters, weavers, tanners, saddlers and basket-makers.

They want schools, and teachers to instruct their children. They need physicians and medicines to save them from epidemics, which have played great havoc with them.

The teachers of the Hebrew school in Munkacs are threatened with expulsion as foreigners by the authorities. The Jewish National Council has been asked by the teachers to intervene with the government and prevent their expulsion.

Continuing in our field work in the organization of the Rabbis' Sons' Theatrical Association, we have the pleasure of introducing you to a new member, Harry Cooper. Harry is at present on the road with one of the Shubert vaudeville units, the Lew Fields' show, called euphoniously, "The Ritz Girls of 19 and 22."

The Cooper family name is Kupfer, and Harry's father was one of the best known cantors in New York City.

The elder Mr. Kaupfer, was a popular chazan in London when he received a call to New York. Kupfer's fine voice made him celebrated and Harry's youth was passed in a very devotional and reverent atmosphere indeed.

The boy had a fine voice and before long he was in his father's choir and became a soloist. But then came the call of the West End; the inevitable call that sounds its siren lure in the ear of every son of a rabbi born on these shores. Gone were soon the cantorial aspirations cherished by Kupfer for his son, and in its stead came Broadway appearance and the appearance of a new branch in the Kupfer family, to wit: Cooper. To Harry's credit be it said that he stipulated—or at least, so says his press department—that no engagements be made for him for Saturday, so that he could sing in his father's choir on that day. Seeing that theatrical performances generally begin at 2.30 and 8.15 it is rather difficult to see where the Sabbath clash came in. But that is none of our business; neither should we inquire what arrangements Harry Cooper made for Friday evening, not to speak of the High Holy Days.

But we imagine those days are gone forever. We don't believe Lew Fields cuts a performance for attendance at the synagog and Harry must be doomed for Saturday appearances for as long as he favors his pay envelope. His duties with the Shubert show are as leader in the Empire City Quartet, a group of ballad singers that has made quite a name for itself.

So now you know the origin of Harry Cooper. Be pleasant to him.

We are in receipt of news that another virtuoso prima donna, Mme. Gita Glaze, is due for a debut in New York shortly. You will remember that one of the distinguishing features of Isa Kremer, as announced by her sponsors, was a perfect intonation in Italian; the new singer is celebrated by the fact that she has sung in most of the important Hebrew operas, as well as those in French, German, Italian and Russian. Candidly, we are forced to admit that Madame Gita Glaze's discovery of Hebrew operas is a far greater achievement than Mme. Kremer's Italian intonation and we wish her all the more success for it.

Otherwise, Mme. Glaze is stated to have been the prima donna at the opera houses in Petrograd, Moscow and Tiflis and to have concertized with success in Europe in a repertoire of songs, 125 in number.

Mme. Glaze was compelled to flee from Russia on account of the unfeeling Bolsheviks, her husband being a wealthy manufacturer in Baku. She traveled circuitously to America by way of every European city, avoiding with expertness the host of revolutionary agents tirelessly spying upon her. After six months' wanderings the Statue of Liberty hove in sight and madame arrived to sing excerpts from Hebrew opera and selections from the 125 songs. And madame has arrived at an opportune time. Everything Russian is going famously in New York. It seems such a waste of potential profits not to have Trotzky over for a lecture tour. But who knows? There are always with us Lee Keedick and Sam Hurok.

Mr. Ford

towards their governments. In these books he accuses the Jews of disloyalty to their government, of starting wars for profits, of debauching the social and artistic life of the country, of teaching their young men to plot against their governments. These books accuse the Jews of teaching dishonesty in their temples and in their synagogs. They even attack Jewish homes, Jewish wives, mothers, daughters and sisters.

Abuses Privilege

When the attention of the Chairman of the Michigan State Fair was called to this display of the Ford wares within the State Fair Grounds, and under the cover of an exhibit of automobiles and farm implements, Mr. J. A. Doelle, Commissioner of the State Fair, declared the books to be offensive and stated that the Fair authorities were not aware that they were being sold by the Fords on the Fair Grounds. He ordered the books removed from the Fair Grounds.

3. "The American Hebrew" has authority for the statement that the reason why Mr. Ford discontinued his attacks on the Jews in his magazine last January was that his editors ran out of material, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Ford's nation-wide spying organization was searching far and wide for copy.

Swallows Another Bait

Since then the "American Hebrew" is informed that Mr. Ford has purchased another bargain. Somebody has sold him an "original text of the Talmud." The fact that the Talmud was centuries in the making and that there is only one text, which can be bought very cheaply in any Jewish bookstore on the east side of New York, evidently does not worry an historian like Mr. Ford.

The "original text" is being carefully guarded in a safe in the Ford offices at Dearborn. A translator has been at work for months, searching texts that will discredit both the Talmud and the Jewish people. From these the Ford Literary and Historical Organization hopes to string together copy for future anti-Jewish articles and books.

We call Mr. Ford's attention to the fact that this has been done before, both by German and French anti-Semites. The books in which these attacks on the Talmud and on the Jews are found, can be purchased for a song; likewise the correct translation from the original Aramaic as made by the Jews.

The important thing to point out is that Mr. Ford's protests that he does not "hate the Jews" does not square with his continued spreading of false information concerning them. He admits that "those Jews who play hardest at the money game are very much in the minority," but the false information he disseminates against them attacks all Jews, everywhere, men and women, indiscriminately.

Mr. Ford would do well, both in action and spirit, to follow literally the Old Testament injunction not to hate one's neighbor in one's heart.
